Railroad Strike Is Called for 6 a. m. on September 6

Rail Strike Is to Follow Refusal of a Wage Increase

350,000 Men Demand 20% Hike—But the Railroads Reject It

ARBITRATION ASKED

Trainmen's Leader Suggests Intervention by Mediation Board

CLEVELAND, Ohio. — (AP) — A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, announced Thursday that committees representing the five railway brotherhoods had authorized a strike for September 6 to support their demands for a general 20 per cent wage increase.

Whitney said the committee, carrying on negotiations at Chicago, set 6 a. m. September 6 as the time for members of the brotherhoods to begin leaving their jobs.

The organizations involved, he added, are the trainmen, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, Switchmen's Union of North America, and the Order of Railway Conductors.

The membership of the groups totals approximately 350,000 men.

Three weeks of conferences between a committee of 15 representing 86 major railroads and spokesmen for the five operating brotherhoods ended suddenly with the announcement by Chairman H. A. Enoch of the management group that the raise could not be granted because it might prove "ruinous."

The unionists then issued a statement saying: "This leaves no alternative for these organizations other than to set the day and hour for the men to withdraw from service, in accordance with the authority given in a strike ballot in which 97 per cent of the workers voted in favor of a strike unless a satisfactory disposition of the request for increases in rates of pay was obtained."

B. A. Whitney, president of the brotherhood of Railway Trainmen said, however, that the government would forestall a walkout.

"Under the Railway Labor act the Railroad Mediation Board could act if it desired," he said. "Upon failure of the board to get results, President Roosevelt could appoint a board to hold hearings and present its findings."

Intervention by such agencies would postpone a strike for 30 days if one were called. A meeting of brotherhood leaders was called for tomorrow to decide their next move. The brotherhood chiefs represented engineers, firemen, trainmen, conductors, and brakemen.

The 14 "non-operating" brotherhoods recently gained an increase of five cents an hour in negotiations originally based on demands for 20-cent hike. The raise was equivalent to about 8 1/2 per cent for 800,000 workers engaged in clerical, signal and other stationary occupations.

Services for Auto-Truck Crash Victim Held 2:30 Tuesday

Funeral services for A. H. Christian, 39, former and cotton buyer, who was killed in an auto-truck crash, Saturday night near Orono, were held at the St. Paul church at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday.

A large band of friends and relatives attended the service, which was conducted by the Rev. Troy Wheeler, pastor of the first Baptist church of Orono.

Try Breeding Coyne

SCOT. Ore. Coyne, a young man, is one of the latest ventures to attract Oregonians. This is the South American animal which supplies the fur known as nutria.

Several farms are now operating in this state and getting a $20 to $30. The crop breeds rapidly, but the young are often devoured by scorpions. The adults, weighing up to 25 pounds, resemble beaver.

Find Stolen Baby in Chicago

Chicago police, who were searching for and later found 3-month-old Diane Carol Lucas, infant daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Lucas, 23, above, believed the baby's disappearance to be the work of a childless woman who, seeing Diane Carol unattended in her carriage, stole the child while Mrs. Lucas was shopping in a neighboring grocery. Mrs. Lucas is shown peering into the empty carriage after her daughter was taken. Inset is little Diane Carol held by her father, Herman Lucas, before the kidnapping took place.

400 Pickers Are Sought for Fields

Both Whites and Negroes Wanted in Local River Bottoms

The National Re-employment Service has orders for more than 400 workers to pick cotton in the river bottom sections of Hempstead, Lafayette, and Miller counties, according to statement Thursday by G. T. Cross, manager of the Hope district employment office.

Picking will be in full swing on the bottom plantations during the next few days, and extra labor will be needed until all the crop is gathered.

Transportation by truck will be provided by some of the plantation owners from population centers such as Hope and Stamps to take workers to and from the fields; while some others have vacant houses on the place where families may live during the entire picking season.

Persons interested in cotton picking jobs should get in touch with the National Re-employment office on Main street over Jack's newsstand.

The jobs are open to both white and negro pickers, men, women and families.

Madman's Island

SMART attractiveness is no longer uncommon in the great uncharted unpredictable world of young women. Nevertheless, it is a bit unusual when three very good-looking young women, unlike in temperament choose to share the same apartment. On the card over the mail box in the lobby downstairs was printed neatly "Dearborn, Howard and Dunn"—quite as if the combination were a law firm. And that card was really significant, for the three girls were certainly in the nature of a corporation.

Perhaps it worked because Kay was a striking brunet, Melita a dashing redhead, and Priscilla a fast-talking blond. Whatever the reason, the trio had roomed together and taken their vacations together for the past four

The federal administration has approved the project and made the first allocation of $15,000. Additional allotments will be made from time to time.

The counties which are included in this project are: Hempstead, Miller, Howard, Lafayette, Columbia and Nevada.

At the meeting, the corporation was formed with W. E. Williams of Garland City as president, Jim Keith of McKamie, vice-president, and W. T. Murphy of Bradley as secretary-treasurer.

The board of directors of the corporation will be: Frank J. Hill, Hope; Jim Keith, McKamie; W. E. Williams, Garland City; W. T. Murphy, Bradley; J. C. Lary, Nashville. Headquarters of the corporation will be in Texarkana; the State National Bank of Texarkana will be the depository; John A. Sherrell of Little Rock, the attorney; William G. Morrison of Little Rock, the engineer.

The engineers promised that work on the plans for construction would begin within 10 days.

Burke Says F. D. Wants 3rd Term

Nebraska Senator Says President May Eventually Yield

BOSTON, Mass. — (AP) — United States Senator Edward R. Burke (Dem., Neb.) who opposed President Roosevelt's proposal to reorganize the Supreme court during the recent session of congress, declared Wednesday night there was a possibility the president may run for a third term.

In an interview before speaking at the Sigma Chi fraternity convention, Senator Burke said he knew President Roosevelt has "advisers and other resources," urging him to make the third attempt.

"I think there is possibility he may yield to them, although I do not think he has it in mind now," said Senator Burke.

"The real issue to be faced by this country in the next few years," he added, "is whether we shall continue under our present form of democratic government or be ruled by executive direction."

Ford Dealers in Used Auto Drive

150 Salesmen Convene Here With Memphis Branch Officials

About 150 Ford dealers and salesmen from the southwest Arkansas counties met at Hotel Barlow Wednesday night for a conference with Memphis branch officials of the Ford Motor company regarding plans for the second annual Ford dealers' nationwide used car clearance sale.

The 205 dealers under the Memphis branch will probably sell 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 million dollars' worth of used cars in the next 30 days, speakers said. The Ford Motor company, to help this program, has outlined one of the biggest used car sales programs in the history of the United States. The sale will start September 1 and will continue through the 30th.

J. K. Lester, manager of the Memphis branch of the Ford Motor company, told the crowd here Wednesday night:

"The Memphis branch anticipates the biggest fall since 1929—and many points in our territory will exceed this."

"Up to this date the Memphis branch's new car and truck sales are up 35 per cent over last year. Used car unit sales are up 60 per cent and the dollar-value of used car sales is up 82 per cent."

Jack Bonduant of the Memphis office of McCann-Erickson, advertising agency for the Ford Motor company, outlined the advertising program that is backing up the dealers.

President Enacts Third Deficiency Bill Into Law Thursday

WASHINGTON. — (AP) — President Roosevelt signed Thursday the third deficiency bill, appropriating $87,662,000 for various government departments and agencies.

No Retaliation on Rebel Democrats

"Don't Get Anywhere Trying to Get Even," Says Farley

WASHINGTON. — (AP) — Postmaster General Farley indicated Wednesday he expects the voters to put rebellious Democratic legislators on the political spot next year. In his first press conference for months, the Democratic chairman insisted there will be "no reprisals" by the administration against those who fought the Roosevelt program. But he forecast that dissenting Democrats will "have a lot of difficulty explaining their position to the voters in 'their states.'"

"We have no control of the voters who want to approve or disapprove any action," he said.

Farley would not commit himself on the demand of Senator Guffey (Dem., Pa.), chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, for defeat of senators who opposed the Roosevelt court bill. When questions on this subject poured in, Farley smilingly replied:

China Ambassador Is Critically Hurt; England "to Act"

International Crisis in Shooting on Nanking-Shanghai Road

RAIDED BY PLANES

British Angered by Attack on Official Car of Ambassador

SHANGHAI, China. — (AP) — The Sino-Japanese war took a grave international turn Thursday when Sir Hugh Knatchbull Huggessen, British ambassador to China, was seriously wounded by an attack from Japanese war planes.

The automobile in which the ambassador was riding from Nanking to Shanghai, was attacked by two Japanese bombers near Shanghai.

He was seriously wounded by spraying machine-gun bullets and was rushed to a Shanghai hospital there.

A diagnosis disclosed that one bullet lodged near the envoy's spine, without fracturing it. This led to the hope that he would recover.

British "to Act"

LONDON, Eng. — (AP) — The British government announced Thursday night it was preparing to deal "appropriately" with the Japanese government on the wounding by Japanese fliers of British Ambassador Sir Hugh Knatchbull Huggessen near Shanghai.

This "appropriate action" will be taken as soon as His Majesty's Government obtains "further information" on the grave international incident.

That was the gist of a foreign office communique issued after Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden returned to his desk from a holiday to take charge of the situation.

Eden was described authoritatively as having taken the air raid incident under "very grave consideration."

Japs Finally Land
SHANGHAI, China. — (AP) — Japan struck crushing blows ashore and at sea Thursday that spread the undeclared war virtually to all China and imperiled her main defenses.

Japanese reinforcements swarmed ashore north and east of Shanghai despite terrific losses earlier by the Chinese mines and gunfire, and were pressing in from two directions upon the city.

Landing of troops in a wide area of the Woosung promontory and from the lower Yangtze river put the Shanghai defenders between the blades of pin-cers.

Effect of these new reinforcements military observers said, made it certain that the war had reached a critical stage here, that Japan was pressing the situation with all her strength and that decisive developments were impending.

Coast Blockade Ordered
At sea, Japan struck with a new weapon against which China is defenseless, a naval blockade of 800 miles of her coast. Vice Admiral Hasegawa, commander-in-chief of the Japanese Third fleet, established the blockade south along the Chinese coast from the mouth of the Yangtze.

The blockade, to be enforced by ships of Admiral Hasegawa's fleet, went into immediate operation against all Chinese shipping. Foreign vessels were specifically exempted.

Although no state of war has been declared between China and Japan, the zone affected now has been spread to almost the entire Chinese coast. The southern half, which has escaped at least the direct efforts of the struggle until now, became a war area because of the Japanese naval patrol extending through the straits between Formosa and the South China mainland.

The blockade paralyzed Chinese shipping, but neutral observers believe its purpose was to retaliate for destruction of Japanese property by the Chinese shells and warplanes.

Obilitation of Chinese coastal trade was expected not to hamper China's supplies at Shanghai and other northern provinces. It was viewed, rather, as a windfall for British and other foreign vessels which will have a monopoly of the commerce. Japanese shipping, it is believed, will be unable to participate because most of it has been withdrawn for military purposes and because Chinese stevedores refuse to handle Japanese-borne goods.

Chinese Lure Yield

Witnesses of the landing of the Japanese forces to strengthen their foothold in central China said the invaders had begun moving in on Shanghai from landing points at Li-tung and other points on the Yangtze

More Than Just Six Destroyer at Stake

ACTION of the United States in proposing to lease six destroyers to Brazil seems in a fair way of undoing much of the confidence built up between South American nations and this country during the past few years, particularly at the Inter-American Conference for the Maintenance of Peace, attended by President Roosevelt.

Argentina is frankly disturbed over the matter and doesn't hesitate to say so, pointing out quite lucidly the reasons for her displeasure. Argentine government officials, informed by the United States that Brazil needs the destroyers to defend herself against nations after her raw materials, notes that only Japan or Germany might be threatening Brazil, and inquiries just how much protection six destroyers would be against either nation.

ALONG with other nations of South America, Argentina resents the secrecy which covered the negotiations. Surprise is expressed that Roosevelt, whose frankness was admired at the conference, would have made a move of this kind without communicating the fact to other South American powers.

Not missing a point, Argentina recalls that the United States for some time has argued against heavy spending on armaments as the worst possible threat to peace.

Says Argentina: wouldn't peace be even further threatened if nations could rent warships cheaply, thus removing the economic brake which has somewhat checked the armament race?

What, asks Argentina, would happen if European countries offer to lend war cruisers to South American countries?

IT might be wise for President and Secretary Hull to consider all the angles. Naval men are wondering if there is any coincidence in the fact that the projected lease involves six vessels—the exact number being built for the Argentine Republic in British shipyards.

Confidence between the Americas is one of the greatest factors in the future of world peace, regardless of what happens across the Atlantic or Pacific. It would seem unwise to disrupt the friendly relations so carefully built up, with what appears to be a touch of ill-advised intrigue.

Glands Affect Life From Day of Birth Until Day of Death

This is the first of 20 articles by Dr. Fishbein on the glands of the body and how they regulate and control our lives.

(No. 302)
The internal glandular system of the human body is one of the most important from the point of view of successful living. These glands develop substances which are vital since they control the actions of various organs; they initiate the functions associated with childbirth; they determine the body's growth.

There are, moreover, other glands known as glands of external secretion which are equally vital since they are concerned with digestion and sex activities.

Where the various glands which regulate life are located in the body.

activities. The glands of external secretion include the liver, the pancreas, the salivary glands and the sex organs.

Moreover, some of these organs also manufacture materials which go directly into the blood as internal secretions. The glands which secrete internal secretions exclusively include the thymus, the pineal gland, the thyroid and parathyroid glands, the pituitary, the suprarenal glands and the sex glands.

A gland is any portion of the body that develops a secretion. The breasts, for example, secrete milk, the salivary glands secrete saliva which moistens the mouth and contains ferments which help to digest starches. The stomach secretes hydrochloric acid and pepsin and these help digestion. The pancreas secretes both an internal secretion known as insulin which is concerned with the control of sugars, and an external secretion known as trypsin which is concerned with the digestion of proteins.

These external secretions are, of course, involved in many of the functions of the body. The internal secretions which go directly into the blood act frequently at remote points in the body from the gland by which they are secreted. Indeed the glands of internal secretion have been considered to be an interlocking chain which governs all of the actions of the human organism.

Overgrowth of some of the glands may result in the appearance of giants; underactivity by these glands results in the development of dwarfs. Changes in the sex glands may make women look like men or look like women.

So astounding are some of the facts in relationship to glandular activities that all sorts of books have been written to capture the public fancy and almost any claim has been received with interest.

It has been pointed out that the life of the human being may be divided into three well-defined periods: The first, from birth to maturity; the second, up to the time when degeneration of the tissues begins, and the third, from the end of most human activity through the time of senescence and old age up to death. The glandular mechanism of mankind varies in its activity during these periods.

'Unquestionably in the first period—that of growth up to maturity—the glands which control growth are of the greatest importance. During the time of maturity, other glands exercise their functions. In the period of old age, the glands begin to break down and degenerate and discontinue their activities.

had arranged to coincide. The question of 'where' was not as immediately pressing as the question 'how.' For one thing, their rent had been raised by an unfeeling landlord. For another, food prices were making a bigger dent in their household budget. Even then, they had to admit ruefully, they might have arranged it if the new summer clothes hadn't been so tempting.

"My mother used to have a joke about being dressed up with nowhere to go," Kay Dearborn said. "That's us," mused Priscilla, "we'll be spared the annual argument as to whether it'll be the seashore, a lake, or the mountains. It's just my luck. Last year you two promised me I could do the deciding this year. And I had a sweet idea."

"What was it?" asked Melita, wearily wadding up a sheet of budget figures and tossing it into the wastebasket. "A boat trip," said the blond Priscilla blissfully. "Of course! On the Queen Mary."

"No, I was really serious about it, Kay. There are some excur-outing Kay Dearborn appeared alert and zesty. Tall and slender, she held her firm young chin high as she walked.

When she reached the apartment she found Melita and Priscilla already there. "We've been waiting for you," Melita said. "There's mutiny. We're going to have dinner down town."

"Why didn't you tell me? I didn't need the walk."

"Priscilla tried to telephone you, but you'd left the office. The management decided to defrost the electric refrigerator today, and Priscilla's lovely dessert is ruined."

Kay made a helpless gesture. "How do you always manage to make it on the day they defrost the box?"

"It's a gift," Priscilla said, getting up. "Come on, let's go." She stopped suddenly, went back to the table. "Oh, Kay here's a legal-looking letter for you. Melita and I have been expiring with curiosity."

Kay took the long envelope, looked at the unfamiliar name in the upper left-hand corner. "It's from Aurora," she said. "I've an uncle there I've never seen." She unfolded the letter and read hurriedly.

"What is it?" asked Priscilla impatiently, dropping down beside Kay.

Kay didn't answer at once. She was rereading the letter. Finally she looked at Melita and Priscilla with a comically perplexed expression. "This—this says that Uncle Ben died a month ago. He—he left me a yacht."

"A yacht!" exploded Melita and Priscilla together. "That's what this says. And it's here. I remember that several years ago Uncle Ben made a cruise from here, but I didn't know that."

"Well!" Priscilla cut in cheerfully, "I guess I'm psychic. Didn't I say it would be a boat trip?"

Kay shot her a scornful look. "With what would we run a yacht?" Priscilla looked puzzled. "I'm not sure. I think they run with gasoline, like an automobile, don't they?" "What," Melita wanted to know, "do you suppose it would cost us to use the boat?" "I haven't the slightest idea But I remember reading that Mr. Morgan said anybody who had to ask that question shouldn't own one." Ruelly Kay looked at the letter again. "Dear old Uncle Ben! It was nice of him to think of me—but what I really needed was two yachts."

"Anyhow," cried Priscilla, jumping up, "let's have a look at the thing. Maybe we could find a nice sailor who'd run it for us—just for the trip!" (To Be Continued.)

they are as proud as can be of their independence.

Once upon a time, we had an experience of this kind. Our girls had gone to camp far, far away. The younger one would be lonely, we knew, as she was terribly petted by the family. Even a night away at Grandma's just about finished her. But we sent her anyway. She needed to learn several things the camp could give her.

Then came the first heart-broken letter. I had to steel myself against her pitiful complaints and let time take a hand. But in a few days came the second, and then the third, much milder, because she was quite young. This was too much, so her father and I decided to take the car and go and get her. Which we did, all but the getting.

Wanted to Stay
During the interval between receipt of her late note and the day we arrived at camp, something had occurred to change her mind. While we were being greeted by the Camp Mistress and before I had time to explain the cause of our errand, I felt a tug at my dress. There was the same sick one motioning me aside. "What is it, dear?" I asked.

"I like it now and want to stay," was the answer.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes. I made these colored beads, and the riding master led me around on a horse."

"How do you like your tent mates?"

This was what I was really anxious to know from this shy, unsure little girl. "They are all nice and kind. And Flo and Betty are my friends."

"Sure you don't want to go home?" I persisted.

Shyness Conquered
No, she certainly didn't. So I assured her that she could stay, and complimented her on being a real sport. We drove away without the passenger we had anticipated. Perhaps all she needed was to catch a glimpse of us, but I think not. She had tried to conform to a situation, and had conquered her own shyness. It was a victory, although she did not know it. She stayed the summer and went back the next year.

"And so it is with most children, I believe. Whether it is camp or another place, to get away from the usual familiar life and fixed ideas of comfort and family ties is good. A day, a week or a month—it doesn't matter—joins the child out of thinking that he can be happy only with the world running in one direction. He learns necessary adjustment to new things and new people. He learns independence, of the right sort. And he learns to eat beans fixed another way, which is often more than he will do at home."

While it was parked on the Fox lot the other day some of the actor-director's pals attached six shiny coffin handles to the exterior, together with a brass name plate and incidental decorations of funeral wreaths.

Ab! Some Modesty!
In special quarters on a remote corner of the United Artists lot, members of Balanchine's American ballet are rehearsing daily.

So secluded are their lives because of their rigid training routine that they know nothing of Hollywood, but Hollywood comes to them. Stars and chorus girls and local dance directors visit their mirrored studio to watch them work. The ballet girls look strange because, instead of bathing suits or scanty shorts, they wear full-length black wool tights. These prevent leg cramps and also preserve modesty.

Said one: "I'd feel awfully nude even in some of the clothes that Hollywood girls wear on the streets."

In an attempt to restore Burgess Meredith's memory in "Don't Forget to Remember," Ann Sothern decides to crack him on the head with a pitcher. For the clousings, they had to have a real china pitcher, but for the actual bopping of Mr. Meredith, the studio prop shop provided replicas cast in lightweight plaster.

Meredith himself had joked about the possibility of a substitution as he compared the heavy pitcher and an imitation—and it was he who put the real one on a table for Miss Sothern to grab. Knocked him stiff as a poker. The scene wasn't satisfactory, either, because the pitcher didn't break.

Hot Under the Fur Collar
This isn't what you'd call football weather; it's the time when the studios must film their gridiron pictures. On the Ritz Brothers' flicker, "Life Begins at College," scores of co-ed chorines are heavily muffled against what is supposed to be the biting November air. In fur coats, they cheer and sing and perspire until Director William Seiter calls "Cut." What happens then is startling. Every girl removes her coat and is seen to be wearing nothing else but the skimpiest of sun-suits.

For a scene in "Stand-by," Leslie Howard is kissing Joan Blondell. That's about all he is doing, too, because he can't remember the lines which are supposed to follow the clinch. Tries three times and is unable to carry on. Director Tay Garnett calls to an assistant: "Telephone Dick Powell and have him come right over. I think this guy is faking."

Howard blushes, everyone laughs, and they try the scene again. This time Howard remembers his lines.

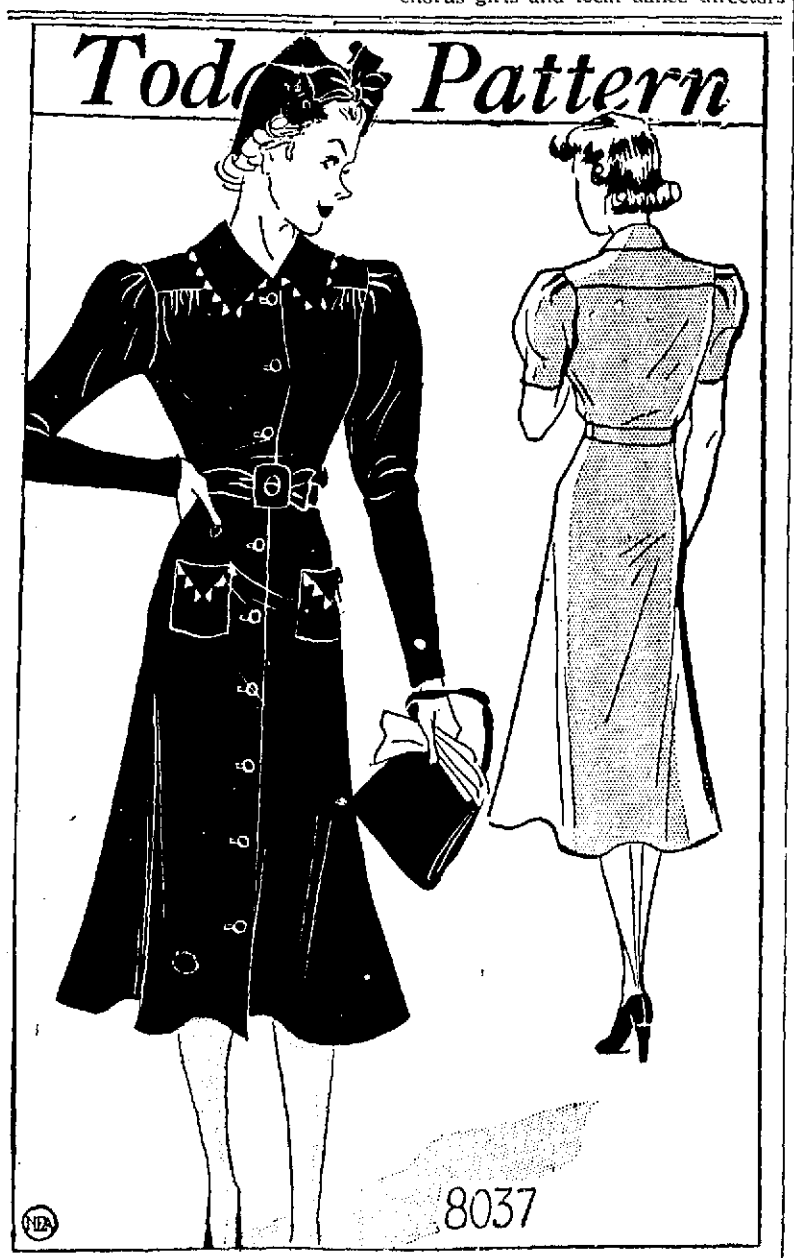

The de luxe Japanese train called "Tsubane" (chimney swallow) will have air-conditioned dining cars as a regular feature of its Tokyo-Kobe service.

LOOK well-dressed when you go shopping and marketing. This dress (Pattern 8037) is as easy as pie to make, buttons from the neck to hem, and has a narrow shoulder yoke to give height and width at this point. It's flattering to wear, with the bodice softly shirred, and can be made up in sheer wool, alpaca, or rayon crepe. The white edging of rick-rack or braid gives a trim and tailored finish that makes this dress definitely suited to run-around wear.

The sleeve pattern is perforated for short length if you prefer it for round-the-house. The skirt is plain cut to flare very gently at the hem.

Pattern 8037 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 4 5/8 yards of 39-inch material with long sleeves (4 1/4 yards with short) and 3 1/2 yards of braid for trimming. Sunshine and shadow, blue sky and gray,
Laughter and tears as we tread on our way;
Hearts that are heavy, then hearts that are light,
Eyes that are misty and eyes that are bright;
Losses and gains in the heat of the strife,
Each in proportion to round out his life.
Out of the sadness and and anguish and woe,
Out of the travail and burdens we know,
Out of the shadow that darkens the way,
Out of the failure that tries us today,
Have you a doubt that contentment will come
When you've purified life and discarded the sum?
Tinctured with sorrow and flavored with sighs,
Moistened with tears that have flowed from your eyes;
Perfumed with sweetness of loves that have died,
Leavened with failures, with grief sanctified,
Sacred and sweet is the joy that must come
From the furnace of life when you've poured off the dross.—E.A.G.

Coroner Probes Actress' Death

The body of pretty Jane Weir, motion picture actress, was the subject of a coroner's autopsy in Los Angeles, after her physician said he was puzzled by the cause of her death and would not sign a death certificate. The 21-year-old former society girl who was regarded as a promising star, died suddenly in a hospital after apparently making a quick recovery from an appendicitis operation.

as well as at the Woosung forts, further inland. Identical movements, it was believed were being carried out on the coast, east of Shanghai and south of the Yangtze estuary, bringing a column up from the rear to strike behind Pootung, rich industrial section across the Whangpoo river from the head of Shanghai.

Numbers of the newly landed forces were not known, but were believed considerable. Thousands of the other Japanese were lying off the coast aboard transports awaiting an opportunity to land.

It became evident also, that the defense lines in Shanghai, Kiangnan and other fronts fringing the International Settlement of Shanghai were feeling the increased Japanese pressure.

Although there was no cessation of the hostilities nor any apparent wholesale retreat, Chinese commanders admitted that "certain positions" were abandoned "strategically."

The Chinese left Shanghai on the north side of the International Settlement and withdrew considerable forces from the vicinity of the North station in the same sector.

Japanese pressed vigorously for a quick advantage, pounding the Chapel, Kiangnan and Pootung areas with combined naval and heavy artillery bombardments. Exploding shells from large calibre guns repeatedly rocked the city.

Camel Patrols

NEW YORK. (AP)—Camels are so useful in the arid areas of Australia that the commonwealth government keeps its own breeding and training stations for these beasts, says Albert Richard Weijen, the explorer.

Camel patrols maintain the two greatest forces in the world—one that bays the jackrabbits from entering the great wheat belt of Western Australia, the other erected against wild dogs and rabbits along the border of New South Wales and South Australia.

As early as 1860, camels were used in the Australian interior by explorers. They were imported from India.

Good Chance Still for Arctic Rescue

Stefansson Says Russian Fliers Will Have Plenty of Food

By PRESTON GROVER
WASHINGTON.—Efforts at rescuing the Russian fliers lost in the Arctic open again a quaint little chapter in northern exploration. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, top-flight explorer of the dog-team days, is coordinating the rescue efforts, with headquarters in the Russian embassy here. Stefansson is generally conceded to know his Arctic. But he had one noted critic, the late old-fashioned Amundsen, himself lost amid the ice floes with several companions who set out in a plane to rescue the second and ill-fated Noble flight into the Arctic in 1928.

Stefansson says there is no danger of the Russians starving if they landed with any equipment. Moreover, he says, they probably could land their plane safely on the ice. Years ago, Stefansson and a pair of college youths traveled afoot across part of the ice area in which the present search is being conducted.

Seal Diet
They couldn't carry enough food to last them for the two months or more they expected to be on the ice. Stefansson planned that they should live "off the country," by eating seal meat. It was an experience, but they survived in good health.

Since then several experiments in various colleges have been conducted to prove that man cannot live on meat alone. Stefansson was reminded of one midwestern school which put several students on a meat diet. At the end of two weeks the men almost turned inside out at the sight of meat, cooked or raw. Worried experiments were promptly ended the test with a conclusion that it would not work. They put their men back on a balanced diet.

Out on the ice with his two companions, Stefansson had the same experience. At the end of two weeks the men could eat no more meat. Their stomachs rebelled at the sight of fresh seal blubber or any other kind of blubber. But Stefansson waited. He had been through it. After a day or two of eating nothing, the men's appetite for blubber returned.

There was no balanced diet of cabbage and spinach they could turn out on there on the ice. They had to eat seal and like it. They did.

Amundsen's Dissent

Part of Stefansson's purpose in making the journey was to establish that animal life existed on or under the ice regardless of the distance from land, and that men could survive on what they could kill. That's where Amundsen comes in.

He scoffed at Stefansson's contention. "Fah," he told this reporter during an interview shortly before he disappeared in the Arctic. "Stefansson never was 5 miles from land on that journey."

But Stefansson said he was several hundred miles from land and his diary of his journey shows this. Moreover, he said he and his men never lacked meat. He didn't go within many miles of the Pole, but he argued that conditions at the Pole were little different from those he experienced over the ice between northern Alaska and a far distant point in northern Canada to which he and his men traveled.

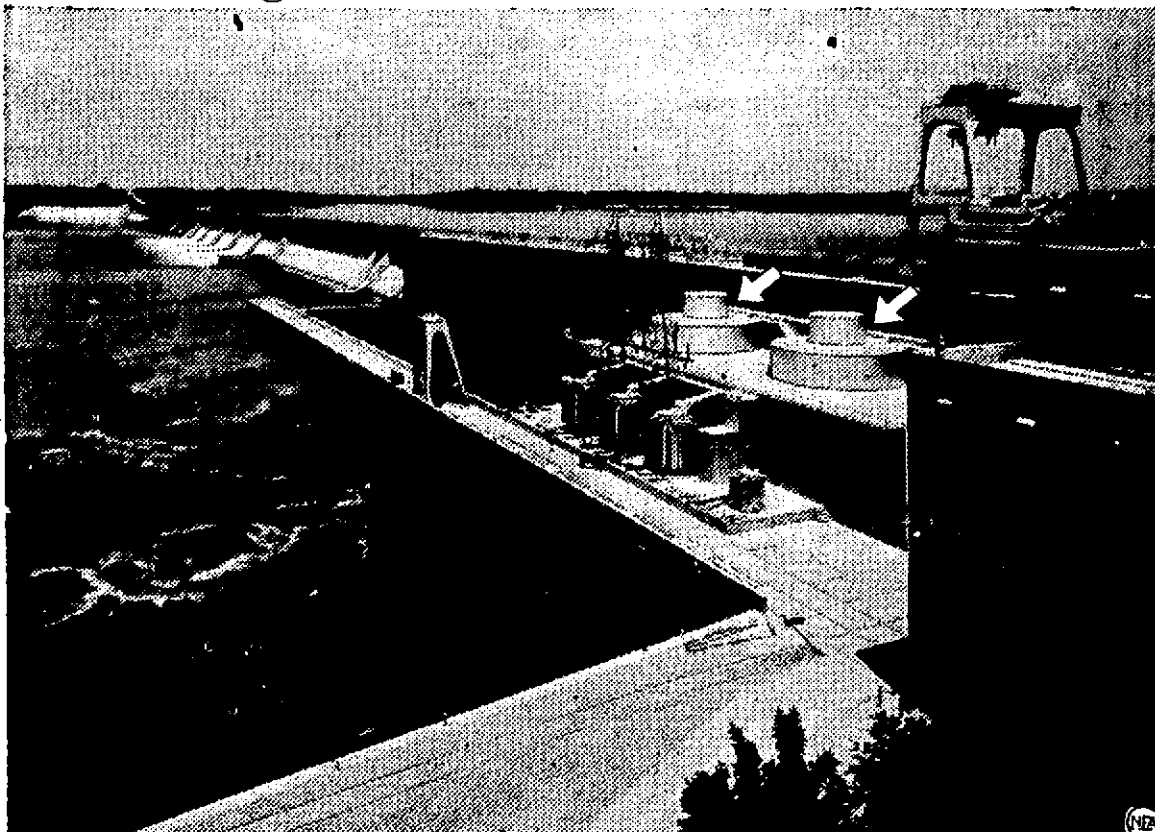

That is one reason he believes the Russians will not starve. Another is that they had a 45-day supply of food with them. Stefansson thinks there is a good chance for rescue.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Uncle Sam's naval aviators should by some strange turn of events be called on to bomb any foreign cities, they would do their work in solid comfort.

The latest "flying boat" bomber developed by the navy has a galley that would make any housewife's eyes shine. It's complete with electric stove, water distiller and even a dry ice refrigerator.

There's also a telephone system aboard.

Second Gigantic TVA Dam to Be Dedicated Soon

The huge turbines of the General Joe Wheeler Dam, shown above, across the Tennessee river near Athens, in northern Alabama, will be put into operation Sept. 10, when President Roosevelt presses a starting button in Washington. Speaker William B. Bankhead, of Alabama, will make the principal address, dedicating the second of the Tennessee Valley Authority's power-navigation-flood control projects. The huge dam, 6500 feet long and 72 feet high, which impounds a lake 74 miles long, cost approximately $33,800,000. Generators of the outdoor type, indicated by arrows, will send power over the vast system of TVA lines, supplementing that generated at the Wilson dam, 15½ miles downstream.

Ozan Cotton Hit by Army Worms

Damage Resulting From Recent Rains Is Uncertain, However

The heavy rains the past three or four days have caused the army worms to break out anew in the cotton fields of the Ozan community. Just what the outcome of the new outbreak will be is not known.

Prospects for a cotton crop in the community are fair, if the rainy weather will discontinue so that the crop can be harvested. Quite a number of bolls are open but the fields are too wet for picking.

O. R. Green brought in the first bale of the season, Saturday. Several other bales were partly completed when the rains set in.

AT THE THEATERS

The renowned prima donna, Lily Pons, discovers that love is far more valuable to happiness than the fruits of fame as a singing star in "That Girl from Paris," her new sparkling film starring Gene Raymond and Jack Oakie.

At the New Theatre Thursday and Friday "That Girl from Paris," is a gay film musical offering one of the widest varieties of entertainment ever recorded for a photoplay. Miss Pons sings three "hot" numbers by Arthur Schwartz, a modern interpretation of the "Blue Danube Waltz," "Tarentella," and "Una Voce Poco Fa" from "The Barber of Seville." Jack Oakie sings an original and a "swing" hand plays organ.

"That Girl from Paris" is the sparkling story of a little French diva, who sheds her mantle of operatic fame and pursues romance incognito. She follows a handsome orchestra leader across the ocean to America where she runs into a series of harrowing adventures with the police, the press and a small army of suitors.

The climax of "That Girl from Paris" is an RKO picture, a madcap marriage ceremony in a racing automobile, that promises to be one of the most hilarious film denouements seen on the screen.

Louis-Farr Championship Fight Is Postponed by Rain

New York Bout Put Off Until Monday

Deluge of Rain in Manhattan Delays Scheduled Heavyweight Go

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The heavyweight fight between Joe Louis and Tommy Farr, scheduled for Thursday night, was postponed until Monday night because of rain.

Cargile Wins in One-Round Kayo

Carson, and Negro Pinkie Carrigan, Win by Technical Kayoes

A right cross to the jaw gave Nolen (Tootsie) Cargile a one-round knock-out over Red Blocker, CCC camp fighter in the feature bout at the Walnut street arena Wednesday night.

Blocker, long and rangy, looked as though he should give Cargile a good fight—but the Alton boy was no match in speed or hitting power.

Cargile floored him twice and then cold-cocked him before the fight had even warmed up. The bout ended with Blocker hanging glassy-eyed on the ropes while Cargile looked questioningly at the referee and spurred with his opponent. Then Blocker's seconds threw in the towel.

In the four-round semi-final Hugh (Cassius) Carson pounded out a technical kayo over Mutt Jones, CCC camp recruit. This was a more even match, both boys giving and taking freely, although Carson's superior hitting and timing finally won out when he signaled "enough" before the end of the third.

Pinkie Carrigan, local negro welterweight, also won his fight by a technical knockout in the third of what was to have been a four-rounder. Johnny Hunter, Emmett 145-pound negro, gave a good account of himself while it lasted, but his long rangy blows were wild and ineffective—and Carrigan's persistent scoring caused Hunter to give out before the final gong in the third.

Crack Shots Pelt Bull's Eye in Camp Perry Rifle Matches

Garishly painted and decorated buildings make "Hogan's Alley," the police pistol range for national matches, the most vivid at Camp Perry, O.

BY HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Writer
CAMP PERRY, O.—Twice as elaborate as any other shooting show on earth, the annual rifle and pistol championships of the National Rifle Association get under way in the fish-tail wind of the 3c mile range facing Lake Erie here, Aug. 28.

Some 60 different N. R. A. matches start with the close of the small arms school now being conducted and are completed Sept. 4. The national matches run from September 6 to 11, bringing to a close three solid weeks of direct hits.

It is a million dollar production at Camp Perry with Congress appropriating $500,000 of it. The matches are provided for the National Defense Act and are held under the direction of regular army officers. Col. F. C. Endicott is the executive officer in charge and in place of worrying about the Army football team, your old friend Maj. W. H. (Cappy) Wells is publicizing the Dead-Eyed Dicks.

More than 5,000 men, women and children, among them the survivors of more than 200,000 who sought places on the National Guard and civilian teams, compete.

Regular Army Forces
Of 122 teams entered only a scant half dozen are from the regular army forces.

National Guard teams from 44 states including Hawaii are participating, as well as 47 civilian teams. Oddly enough, Delaware, where the powder comes from, is the only state not represented. The American Legion has three teams. Others come from Citizens Military Training Camps, Reserve Officers Training Camps, the Naval Militia, Army Reserves and the Marine Reserves.

About 150 teams of 14 will blaze away for the national rifle championship in the blue ribbon event of the American shooting world which marks the end of the long program.

Other features of the matches include a special school for law enforcement agencies attended by representatives of at least 50 police teams as well as Federal agencies, and small bore matches for individual and junior championships. A number of feminine entries have been received for all the matches except those strictly for police.

Shed Public Enemies
The police course is most interesting and last year was attended by 191 officers from 59 different departments. The course includes pistol and sub-machine gun firing on regular ranges street fighting on a range known as "Hogan's Alley" where a motion picture set representing five buildings has been erected, hand to hand fighting which is better known in the Army as "dirty tricks," and the use of gas and gas weapons.

Garishly painted and decorated, the "buildings" make "Hogan's Alley" the most vivid range at Camp Perry. The officer walks down the street with his pistol in his holster. As he reaches the first building, at the window on either the first or second floor, a door, or from behind a chimney, a target suddenly appears. The officer draws his gun and fires. As he passes each building a target appears. About the only unreal part of the range is that targets do not fire at the cop. This is the only course of its kind.

Marine Corporals
The national individual rifle and the President's match are the most coveted championships. United States Marines bagged both a year ago, the individual going to Corporal Waldo A. Phinney and the President's match to Corporal Valentine J. Kravitz.

The matches really are most colorful. Competitors wear all kinds of clothes, and some of the women have some ideas on what to wear which must be a bit disquieting to the masculine shooters.

But Wade had no patience with many expert rifle and pistol shots. When they turn out to shoot, their weapon and ammunition is of no greater importance than some of the gadgets which they consider essential and which they tote to the firing line. Veterans lug as many as 22 different gadgets and articles to their first firing positions.

Not a few of them formerly carried a special grease for their bullets, possibly to help them pass through the air. This now is prohibited, on the ground no doubt, that those who hold them and squeeze them like these blocks do not have to resort to trick deliveries.

Giants Cut Cubs' Lead by One-Half

49,000 New York Fans See Chicago Smashed in Double-Header

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The Giants beat the two-making Chicago Cubs twice Wednesday in put themselves back in the thick of the National League pennant race before a crowd of near capacity, 49,707. The double triumph cut the Cubs' lead from four to two games.

Trailing by five runs in the ninth inning of the first game after their ace southpaw, Carl Hubbell, had been subjected to heavy hitting, the Giants tied the score with the aid of a three run homer by Jimmie Riddle and won 8-7 in the 11th. New York then blasted Larry French to capture the second game 4 to 2.

Harry Gumbert, young right-hander, scattered seven Cub hits and batted in what proved to be the winning run in the second game. Gumbert was supported by the slugging of Joe Moore, who hit a homer and doubled, Hank Leiber, who hit a 400-foot triple in the fourth and sewed up the game with a homer in the sixth. Leiber made a circus catch of a short fly for Lonnie Frey in the sixth that helped stop a Chicago rally with two on base.

Only an extraordinary combination of circumstances including costly Chicago base running and fielding mistakes, enabled the Giants to win the opener. Held to two runs by Bill Lee for eight innings, while the Cubs plied up a 7 to 2 margin against the combined hurling of Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher, the Giants looked thoroughly licked.

The "goat" of that amazing finish was Billy Herman, second sacker of the Cubs, whose two errors, in the ninth and 11th paved the way for his team's downfall. The hero was Riddle whose homer climaxed the five-run rally that tied the score in the ninth. Riddle on base as the result of Herman's second miscue in the 11th, also scored the winning run as hits by

The PAYOFF

Rowdy Richard Proves Importance by Starting Winning Streak the Day He Returns After Being Out a Month

BY RICHARD MC CANN
NEA Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK.—If you are looking for a clue as to why the New York Giants are back up there in the National League race look no further than the second line in their box score.

There once again you will read: Bartell, ss. . . . That is one of the most important lines in history—as important as the 1924 Seven Moles of Notre Dame, the Seven Rooks of Fordham and the International Date Line.

For two different stretches this season the line was missing. One afternoon, Mr. Bartell, who, as you may suspect, plays shortstop, and considerable of it, went far to his right for a ground ball, scooped it up and in his own furious fashion threw every last ounce of his body behind a heavy to first base.

So happened that the last ounce objected to being thrown around like this. Mr. Bartell came up with crick in his back or something, and had to go to the sidelines. This happened in the afternoon of July 18. At the time the Giants and the Chicago Cubs were as close as these two lines of type. Mr. Bartell's team was only a bit of a percentage point behind the leading Cubs.

Terry Curtis Bartell
Well sir, what happened? Mr. Bartell is on the sidelines from that afternoon until Friday, August 13 and the Giants drop 5 games behind the Cubs. So then what happens? Mr. Bartell

Leiber and Hank Danning brought him around the bases. The last six New York runs were unearned. The big crowd turned loose a five-minute demonstration after Riddle's homer fell into the lower right-field stands, with Moore and Dick Bartell on base. The field was littered with hats, papers and score cards.

ing citizen. For instance, he was born left-handed, but his father recovered from his horror quick enough to correct him.

You see his father had been a ball player and he knew what would happen if he let little Richard grow up to be a left-handed pitcher or something.

Papa Bartell was one of the best semi-pro ball players in Chicago. Dick has three uncles who were some shakes in baseball too. Uncle Willie got as far as the spring training camp with the Cubs.

From Uncle Willie Dick has a metal the old gentleman once won for base-stealing, and from his dad, Dick has a burning ambition "to make a triple play unassisted because the old boy made one once, he tells me, and I've never heard the last of it."

Dick, who is one of the best fielding shortstops in baseball, uses the smallest glove of them all, thinks going to the right is a terrific job, never shifts his position according to pitch "because it will tip off the batter," and says the pop flies back of second are the bane of shortstops.

"The second baseman and two or three outfielders are also going after the ball and with the crowd hollering you can't hear your teammates yell who's going to take the ball," says Dick.

He can still remember his first hit as a professional. "I was playing in the Butte Mines League," recalls Dick, "my hands were wet with nervous sweat, I shook like a leaf, the pitcher wound up, I shut my eyes tight and swung. The next thing I knew the manager was hollering 'Run you little idiot run.' I had hit the ball and got two bases."

"The little idiot is still running now but it is the pitchers who shutter and close their eyes."

Nationalist Leader Among Those Held for Attempt on U. S. Judge

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico. (AP)—United States authorities rounded up 10 Puerto Rican Nationalists Thursday for the attempt June 8 to shoot United States District Judge Robert Cooper.

Among those for whom a warrant was issued was the acting president of the Nationalist party, Julio Pinto Gandia.

Judge Cooper's car was fired upon after he sentenced Nationalist Leader Pedro Campos and seven others to Atlanta penitentiary on charges of attempting to overthrow the United States government by force.

First Utility Bows to 'Death Verdict'

American Water Works Will Comply With Holding Company Act

WASHINGTON (AP)—The American Waterworks & Electric Co., a large public utility holding company, filed a voluntary reorganization plan with the Securities Commission Wednesday in compliance with the so-called "death sentence" section of the Utility Holding Company Act of 1935.

The utility act empowered the commission beginning Jan. 1, 1938, to force utility holding companies to simplify their capital structures.

American Water Works, a $384,644,218 system, proposed to simplify its setup by dissolving an intermediate holding company, the West Penn Electric Co., merger of one of its smaller companies and general rearrangement of administration of other companies. The West Penn Electric Co. is a $75,000,000 concern.

American Water Works thus became the first big holding company to bow to a controversial section of the Utility Holding Company Act which empowers the Securities Commission to force utility concerns to integrate their systems geographically, economically and financially.

The step was taken without waiting for the section to become effective or constitutionality of the act to be determined. The system operates in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland and Virginia.

Concerning the forecast by Senator Minton (Dem. Ind.) that Paul V. McNutt will be the next Democratic presidential nominee, Farley said:

"You would expect Minton to say a few kind words for a man from his own state. It is too far off there are a lot of other problems."

A. F. L. to Revoke Rebels' Charter

Green Won't Let C. I. O. Delegates Sit in A. F. L. Convention

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, prepared swift action Wednesday night to revoke the West Virginia state federation's charter for seating C. I. O. delegates at its convention.

The first step, he said, would be for the A. F. L. Executive Council to summon John B. Easton, president of the state federation, to appear for "trial" on charges of disobeying an order to keep C. I. O. delegates out of the convention. He said the council probably would issue this summons Thursday.

After the council makes a "finding of fact" on Easton's testimony, Green said, the federation probably will revoke the state federation's charter, and take "whatever legal steps are necessary" to obtain the state federation's books, papers and other property. These, he said, would be turned over to a reorganized state federation of local A. F. L. unions.

The West Virginia federation voted this week at its Parkersburg convention to seat C. I. O. as well as A. F. L. delegates. An overwhelming portion of labor in the state belongs to the United Mine Workers, a C. I. O. union. Charles A. Wood, delegate to the West Virginia conference, informed Green 500 of the 650 delegates were miners.

SALEM, Ore. (AP)—A secondhand airplane, dropping seed on 50,000 acres of burned-over forest land, has converted part of the Banden burn on the coast in southern Oregon into one of the state's best grazing areas.

Today, 11 months after the disastrous fire, sheep are grazing in waste-high grass in a region which only a short time ago was a scene of desolation.
